We have a New Teacher!

At St George we have four different class levels in which students attend. Recently our 'Intermediate' class has grown at such a rate that a new teacher has been hired, so that the class can be split into two in order to cope with numbers. Lyndsey Craig has taken this position, thus becoming our newest member to the teaching staff. Lyndsey, who is originally from New Zealand, has spent the last thirteen years teaching English in Japan at 'Sundai School of Foreign Language'. She has been back in New Zealand for four months now, and along with teaching English to international students Lyndsey also enjoys teaching yoga at a local health and sports center.

Winter

July is a winter month here in New Zealand. The wind is blowing and the rain is falling. It is 13°C in Auckland today, but in the most southern part of NZ it is only 3°C! Along with the south being chilly, there is also massive flooding and high winds in the north of NZ. It is a great time to be inside studying, in NZ but a terrible time to be out sight-seeing!
